THE PETER WHITMER HOME was a small log cabin in which The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints was organized on April 6, 1830. Six men, among others, gathered in the farm home of Peter Whitmer, Sr., in Fayette, New York. There, according to law, they organized The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Those present were Joseph Smith, the first Prophet of the Church, Oliver Cowdery, Samuel H. Smith, David Whitmer, Hyrum Smith, and Peter Whitmer, Jr. The property passed through many owners, and on April 25, 1926, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints purchased it. The Church now has grown to a worldwide organization of more than five million members.

Pioneer Utah Shun & /4-947 Possessed Sturdy Home

An apartment house bearing the family name now stands on north Main street where once was this fine old home, shaded by numerous trees and bordered with one of those substantial rock walls seldom seen any more.

Horse-drawn carriages and buggies were used for transportation over earth roads and streets by the man who lived there, but the changes that have taken place around his home would interest him greatly because he always advocated "building for the future." He was Lieutenant governor of the provisional state of Deseret for many years before his death in 1868. In his youth and earlyhood he learned blacksmithing and pottery making, practicing the latter trade at times to support his exceptionally large family. In Utah history he figures prominently as an industrialist and farmer.

But all of these activities were overshadowed by his work as a churchman.

He visited every settlement in Utah and made numerous missionary journeys both on this continent and abroad. He was leader of a small party which first carried his faith to Great Britain and during a few months gained nearly 1500 converts.

In 1847 he came to the Great Salt Lake valley with the first company of pioneers, then returned to Winter Quarters, Neb., to be sustained first counselor to Brigham Young when the latter became President of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Friday (June 20) more than 400 of his descendants are expected to gather for a family reunion at Lagoon.

Today's Centennial contest photo, submitted by Mrs. J. D. Fargee, 505 Kalmar st., San Diego, Cal., shows the home of Heber C. Kimball, 116 N. Main.
